

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE:

[0022] An electrical fitting terminates a jacketed flexible metallic conduit. The fitting includes conductive metal components, such as a body, gland nut and ground cone. The fitting also includes non-metallic insulative components such as a sealing ring and an insulated throat. These components are formed of a high-temperature resistant material so that the fitting may be rated for high-temperature applications.